

EALC Graduate Student Handbook

This handbook is designed to supply you with basic information about the Master's Program in the East Asian Languages and Cultures Department, the Juris Doctorate/Master's Joint Degree in Law and East Asian Languages and Cultures and the East Asian Cultures Graduate Certificate at the University of Kansas.

Director of Graduate Studies

Prof. Keith McMahan

(785) 864-9126

Email: kcmahan@ku.edu

The EALC Director of Graduate Studies will be the person you see every semester to plan your course of study. He or she will handle all academic questions relating to your study in the M.A. program and will assist in finding you an advisor for your thesis project.

Graduate Academic Advisor, CLAS

Cari Ann Kreienhop

College of Liberal Arts and Sciences, University of Kansas

3107 Wescoe Hall

Phone: (785) 864-3665

Email: cak@ku.edu

The Graduate Academic Advisor handles the paperwork and files that pertain to your study in this program, as well as the forms necessary for the completion of your requirements for the degree, including thesis defense or final M.A. exam. She is available to answer non-academic questions you have about the program.

EALC PROGRAM OFFERINGS

The Department of East Asian Languages and Cultures currently offers coursework toward the following degrees:

M.A. in East Asian Languages and Cultures with three concentrations:

- Chinese language and literature
- Japanese language and literature
- East Asian Cultures

J.D. in Law / M.A. in East Asian Languages and Cultures Joint Degree

Graduate Certificate in East Asian Cultures with three tracks:

- China Studies
- Japan Studies
- Korea Studies

MASTER'S DEGREE IN EAST ASIAN LANGUAGES AND CULTURES

The department offers a master's degree in East Asian languages and cultures. Students should declare their concentration in one of three options.

- Chinese language and literature
- Japanese language and literature
- East Asian cultures

Students of Chinese or Japanese language and literature take more language courses and study the modern and pre-modern literature of their target culture. Students of East Asian cultures develop a broad interdisciplinary knowledge of East Asia. This concentration is for students pursuing professional or non-college teaching careers, for students in the early stages of language training, or for students who have already acquired competence in an East Asian language.

Admission & Admission Prerequisites

Information regarding application deadlines, materials, and University admission requirements are posted on the EALC Department Graduate Admissions page.

Entrance requirements for concentration in Chinese or Japanese language and literature include:

- Three years of the modern language and, for Chinese language students, one year of classical Chinese or the demonstrated equivalent. Students not meeting this prerequisite may be admitted with deficiencies.
- Two lecture courses dealing with East Asia.

Entrance requirements for concentration in East Asian cultures are:

- At least two years of an East Asian language. Students not meeting this prerequisite may be admitted with deficiencies provided they achieve this level of proficiency outside the minimum of 30 graduate credit hours required for the degree.
- Two lecture courses dealing with East Asia.

Program Requirements for Chinese or Japanese Language and Literature Concentration

A minimum of 30 graduate credit hours (courses numbered 500+), including:

- a) Fourth-year level language courses.
- b) At least 18 credit hours taken in residence in the department.
- c) 6 of these 18 credit hours must demonstrate research capacity in the student's major language in lecture courses or seminars.
- d) EALC 700 Introduction to East Asian Studies and the relevant bibliography course must be included [NOTE: This course is currently not being taught; please check with the DGS].
- e) No more than 3 hours of directed readings courses may be included in the required 30 hours.
- f) Students are expected to take at least one literature course at the 500 level or above in their language concentration.
- g) Students must take 1 course that deals wholly with an East Asian country outside their concentration.
- h) The thesis (3 credit hours) should include significant use of materials in the student's major language.

Program Requirements for the East Asian Cultures Concentration

A minimum of 30 graduate credit hours (courses numbered 500+), including:

- a) Third-year level of language courses.
- b) At least 24 credit hours taken in residence in the department.
- c) EALC 700 Introduction to East Asian Studies must be included in the student's curriculum. [NOTE: This course is currently not being taught; please check with the DGS]
- d) Students are expected to select 1 of the East Asian cultures for concentration and to include in their programs at least 2 courses dealing wholly with an East Asian culture outside their concentrations.
- e) Students may not take more than 3 hours of directed readings.
- f) Students may, in consultation with the Director of Graduate Studies, take other credit hours in a discipline or disciplines closely related to their studies. East Asian area courses are offered in anthropology, film and media studies, geography, history, history of art, linguistics, philosophy, political science, religious studies, sociology, and theatre.
- g) Students must take 1 course at the 500 level or above in the literature or thought of the country of their concentration.
- h) The thesis (3 credit hours) that must deal with a subject in the concentration chosen by the student.

JOINT DEGREE IN J.D. LAW/ M.A. EAST ASIAN LANGUAGES AND CULTURES

A joint degree in Law and East Asian Languages and Cultures opens many doors for its recipients. One can find opportunities in international trade and finance, immigration law, and other related fields, as well as a greater ability to work with clients from various backgrounds.

Admission & Admission Prerequisites

Applicants must meet University Admission requirements and both EALC and Law entrance requirements for the joint J.D./M.A. degree program.

- Students apply for each program separately and must be admitted to both programs no later than the end of the first year of study in Law or the completion of more than 16 credit hours in EALC.
- The Law School Admission Test (LSAT) is the only standardized test required for an applicant to the joint degree program.

Program Requirements for Chinese or Japanese Language and Literature Concentration

Joint degree students must complete a minimum of 106 credit hours: 81 in the School of Law and 25 in the Department of East Asian Languages and Cultures, including:

- a) Third-year level of language courses.
- b) Completion of all required first-year School of Law courses (32 credit hours) prior to enrolling in EALC coursework.
- c) Students are expected to select 1 of the East Asian cultures for concentration and to include in their programs at least 2 courses dealing wholly with an East Asian culture outside their concentrations.
- d) Students may not take more than 3 hours of directed readings.
- e) Students may, in consultation with the Director of Graduate Studies, take other credit hours in a discipline or disciplines closely related to their studies. East Asian area courses are offered in anthropology, film and media studies, geography, history, history of art, linguistics, philosophy, political science, religious studies, sociology, and theatre.
- f) Students must take 1 course at the 500 level or above in the literature or thought of the country of their concentration.
- g) Students are required to fulfill one of the following requirements:
 - a. Write a thesis (3 credit hours) which must deal with a subject within the concentration chosen by student, or
 - b. Practical thesis: Hold an internship or job in the country of concentration for a period of at least 8 weeks, at the advisor's approval, and write a 40-page analysis of the cultural aspects of the experience (3 credits)

Miscellaneous EALC Master's Degree protocols:

Regarding requirements: Above all, see the Director of Graduate Studies whenever you are making decisions about course selection. See the DGS every semester at least once if not more often. Do not make important decisions without consultation.

For entering students, in general the GRE verbal score should be 153 or above (500 or above in the prior GRE scale). The same applies to international students, for whom the Graduate School minimums for the TOEFL exam are: 22 speaking, 20 reading, 20 listening, 20 writing.

Students from other overlapping programs: If a student is a degree-seeking student in Art History or some other program, EALC may accept as many of the student's completed hours in the other program as it considers feasible. If a student is non-degree-seeking, only twelve hours may count toward a degree.

Course numbering: Students may take East Asia related courses from other departments, that is, courses without the EALC prefix, such as: History, Art History, Political Science, and Religious Studies. In all cases, check with the DGS first. All courses must be at the 500 level or above in order to count toward completion of the degree.

Annual evaluation: In addition to seeing students regularly in advising sessions, EALC conducts a yearly progress report on each of its graduate students. You will receive an annual evaluation every spring, in which, among other things, the DGS will comment on progress toward degree and in particular, will be concerned that students show above average performance in research work and in language classes.

Financial Aid – see EALC graduate advisor for information about fellowships for students in East Asian Studies at K.U. There are positions as Graduate Teaching Assistants and Foreign Language Area Studies fellowships when available from the Center for East Asian Studies.

GRADUATE CERTIFICATE IN EAST ASIAN CULTURES

The department offers a graduate certificate in East Asian Cultures. All M.A. students will be granted entrance into the graduate certificate program in the track of their choosing:

- Chinese Studies
- Japanese Studies
- Korean Studies

Graduate students from other departments may also participate in the Graduate Certificate program to receive a transcript designation upon certificate completion.

Admission & Admission Prerequisites

A student must be in good standing with their graduate degree program in order to participate in the certificate program. Required and supplemental materials for the application are listed on the East Asian Cultures certificate webpage.

Program Requirements for East Asian Studies Certificate

Students are required to complete 12 credits of graduate –level coursework to successfully earn an East Asian Cultures certificate in their chosen area of concentration.

Required Course:

EALC 704 Contemporary East Asia

Elective Courses:

The following restrictions apply to the choice of electives:

Two courses must concentrate on the country the student is studying.

The third elective course may either concentrate on the country of study, OR on East Asia in general.

In consultation with the department’s Director of Graduate Studies, students must choose three additional 3-credit courses from either:

East Asian Languages & Cultures graduate-level courses, see the Academic Catalog for current offerings.

Approved additional elective courses, listed below:

COMS 557 East Asian Communication
ECON 583 Economic Issues of East Asia
GEOG 796 Asian Regions: _____
HIST 510 Topics in: _____
HIST 582 Ancient Japan
HIST 605 Medieval Japan

Enrollment and Maximum credit hours

The normal full-time enrollment for a graduate student is nine credit hours per semester or six hours per summer session. Students are not normally permitted to enroll for more than sixteen hours or more than eight hours in summer session. If a student is a KU employee or Graduate Teaching Assistant (GTA), the hours of enrollment should be limited accordingly—usually to no more than ten hours for a half-time appointment or six hours for full-time appointment. Please note that in order to adhere to the employment contract, a GTA must have a minimum of six hours per fall or spring semester. There are no enrollment requirements for GTAs in the summer semester.

Student Rights and Responsibilities

Graduate students are responsible for informing themselves of Graduate School requirements as stated in the most recent issue of the Graduate School Catalog (<http://catalog.ku.edu/graduate-studies/>). They are also expected to be familiar with the regulations and requirements of their Graduate Divisions and departments and of their graduate programs. Members of the Graduate Faculty and of the staffs of the Graduate Divisions and Graduate School are ready to answer questions and offer counsel.

Student Grievance Procedure

Pursuant to Article XIV of the University Senate Code and Articles V and VI of the University Senate Rules and Regulations of the University of Kansas, Lawrence, the Graduate School establishes the following procedures to hear the individual grievances of graduate students. A graduate student who believes himself or herself to be unfairly or unlawfully treated in an academic matter may present a grievance to the academic department or program chair. Each academic unit and all Graduate Divisions have established grievance policies and procedures. Appeals of a grievance heard at one of these levels is to the Judicial Board. These procedures shall not be used to hear disputes assigned to other hearing bodies under USSR Article VI, Section 4.

The Graduate Student Organization (GSO)

Graduate students are encouraged to organize themselves and provide input in departmental affairs. The following are the policies for such input (as of 10/07):

If there is an active graduate student organization (GSO) in the department, it will be responsible for annually electing, through secret ballot, a single representative.

The graduate student representative can be either self-nominated or nominated by other graduate students.

The representative should take an impartial stance in representing the best interests of the graduate student body by communicating with the graduate student body.

The graduate student representative may sit in on faculty meetings and provide input, if and only if that input has been discussed with the majority of graduate students and represents the interests/concerns of the graduate students as a whole.

The graduate student representative is responsible for communicating concerns/ requests for opinions from the faculty to the GSO when the faculty expresses that desire.

The graduate student should act as a medium to present the concerns and interests of the entire graduate student body in the department.

The representative should be responsible for holding meetings and/or discussions with the graduate student body in order to represent the interests of the student body as a whole.

The GSO may at any time replace the graduate student representative if there is concern about integrity, misrepresentation, or misconduct.

In matters related to hiring and tenure and other such committees, faculty may select a graduate student to represent graduate student interests on appropriate committees. If there is no active GSO in the department, then before a decision is made regarding hiring or tenure, the relevant committee must solicit written feedback from the graduate students of the department by circulating a questionnaire. The results of that survey must be considered by the committee before making a decision. However in no case may a graduate student vote on the final selection of a candidate being considered for hire in EALC.

Good Research Practices

Your final goal in the Master's Program in EALC is writing the Master's thesis. Research is a major focus of graduate education. A key part of good research practices involves ethics and "responsible conduct for research" (RCR). Working in collaboration with the KU Center for Research, KU's graduate ethics program focuses on curriculum reform, as well as faculty, staff, student, and administrator training on issues pertaining to ethical conduct of research and scholarship. For more information, go to http://research.ku.edu/research_integrity_office_research_graduate_studies_university_kansas or contact the Office of Research Integrity at researchintegrity@ku.edu.

EALC 712 Readings in Traditional Japanese Literature
EALC716 Modern Japanese Literature in Translation
EALC 717 Contemporary Japanese Literature in Translation

Writing the Thesis

As noted above, the thesis is the culmination of your studies in EALC at K.U. The thesis is a study of approximately 60 to 100 pages (it can be longer) on a topic that you research under the supervision of an advisor at K.U. The advisor need not be a member of EALC, but may be (and commonly is) someone from another department who is a specialist in East Asia. The Director of Graduate Studies can help direct you toward a thesis advisor and will continue to track your progress with the thesis advisor as you develop your thesis.

Timing is essential in preparing your thesis. Ideally you will decide upon a topic around the end of your first year and will begin discussion with a faculty member who will be your main adviser. You should discuss your questions and ideas with the EALC Director of Graduate Studies at the same time that you discuss anything with a potential adviser. The DGS can also help you with your topic and with deciding upon an adviser, but the advisor is the person who is most important for guidance in writing your thesis.

How to write a thesis? It is important that you make yourself aware of the basic expectations for an M.A. thesis, such as its structure, methodology, format, and so forth. An easy way to begin is to look at the theses of former M.A. students, which should remind you that the document you produce will be a public one. Others will see it and some may even cite it to conduct their own research.

After deciding upon a topic, you must collect materials and digest them in time to start writing at least four to six months before you actually hand in the thesis. For example, if you plan to graduate in May, you should plan to finish your entire first draft by March (though timing also depends on your individual advisor). Expect revision to be a major part of your writing. The advisor will return portions of the thesis to you for revision, usually several times. When the advisor judges that your thesis is ready, he or she will share it with the other two members of your thesis committee. You will then schedule an oral defense. To do so, you must give the department three weeks advance notice. See below for steps toward applying for the degree. Remember that 1) collecting information is one thing, taking that information and writing about it is another, and 2) writing involves three important components: creating an outline, writing the first draft according to that outline, and then revising, revising, and revising.

You are responsible for informing yourself about thesis format (including type of paper and binding) and the official school formalities (including deadlines) for thesis submission. Please use the College Office of Graduate Affairs Master's Degree Completion Checklist as a guide through the final stages of degree completion.

After Graduation

We can help you envision a future after graduation based on what our alumni are currently doing, but ultimately you must make that step on your own. However, keep in mind that your instructors at K.U. perform the extremely important service of writing letters of recommendation for you. They are willing and happy to do so. Do not feel awkward about asking for a letter of recommendation, especially if you have cultivated an active and constructive relationship with the professors who will write for you.
